Dear Rhett

On behalf of Siemens (N.Z.) Ltd, I wish to thank and commend you on last Friday's presentation to our staff and invited guests at Haywards and Benmore, culminating in the Friday morning event at Penrose.

As a motivational speech to our field teams and a keynote speech to launch our March 4 Safety programme for 2011, I don't think we could have picked a more appropriate presenter and topic. We are vitally interested in promoting safety at Siemens – not only for staff and customers but also for the families of our employees, and your account of your experiences is a powerful expression of the far-reaching consequences of a single risky act.

We have received many comments on your talk from those attending the presentations and the overwhelming consensus is that your message was both an important one and well delivered – and extremely moving.

Thanks again for your courage in making yourself available to deliver this personal account, and your professionalism in delivering it in a memorable and captivating way.

Kind regards

Paul Ravlich

Testimonial – Rhett Brown

Friday, 25 February 2011

Rhett Brown addressed our staff as the keynote speaker to launch our annual March 4 Safety health and safety programme which runs for the whole of March each year.

Rhett's account of his experiences following a two-metre fall that left him severely disabled is a moving and sobering presentation that perfectly echoes the need to take safety and risk avoidance seriously.

Rhett's harrowing personal story is delivered in a memorable and professional way, and leaves few in his audience unaffected. If you are looking for a speaker to strike a strong safety note based on a real and gritty personal experience, look no further.
